UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
 DISTRICT OF NEVADA

MARCO SASSONE,

 Plaintiff,

 vs.

 DARRELL T. COKER, et al.,

 Defendants.

Case No.: 2:16-cv-03037-APG-PAL

MOTION TO DISMISS PURSUANT TO FRCP 8, FRCP 12(b)(1) and (6), & FOR JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS
 PURSUANT TO FRCP 12(c)

Defendant, Darrell T. Coker ("Coker"), hereby files this Motion to Dismiss Plaintiff Marco Sassone's ("Sassone" or "Plaintiff") lawsuit and his claims for deceptive trade practices, and violations of Nevada RICO, NRS 207.400(1)(1), 207.400(1)(c)(1), and/or (2) under Fed. R. Civ. P. 12(b)(1) or 12(b)(6) and Fed. R. Civ. P. 8. A motion for judgment on the pleadings is also made pursuant to Fed. R. Civ. P. 12(c).

MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORITIES

1.0 Introduction and Background

Plaintiff initiated this case in Clark County as Case No. A-16-742853-C (the "State Court Action"). Before Mr. Coker was served, he removed to this Court under 28 U.S.C. § 1454 (ECF No. 1), because the claims are actually "copyright in disguise" and thus present a federal question. For the same reason they present a federal question, they must be dismissed.

Sassone seeks protection for a copyright interest in paintings, which are the exact protections preempted by the Copyright Act, including additional rights covered under the Visual Artists Rights Act of 1990 ("VARA"), 17 U.S.C. § 106A. Sassone has failed to replead his case to avoid preemption and further has not stated plausible claims recognized by law. Mr. Sassone's case should be dismissed under either Fed. R. Civ. P. 12(b)(1), Fed. R. Civ. P. 12(b)(6), Fed. R. Civ. P. 8 or Fed. R. Civ. P. 12(c).

2.0 This Case Must Be Dismissed

2.1 Rule 12(b)(1): Subject Matter Jurisdiction

Subject matter jurisdiction is an essential element to every lawsuit and must be demonstrated "at the successive stages of the litigation." Chapman v. Pier 1 Imports (U.S.), Inc., 631 F.3d 939, 954 (9th Cir. 2011) (citing Lujan v. Defenders of Wildlife, 504 U.S. 555, 561 (1992)). The existence of subject matter jurisdiction is an ongoing inquiry that a court must conduct sua sponte in order to continue the case. Chapman, 631 F.3d at 954; Bernhardt v. County of Los Angeles, 279 F.3d 862, 868 (9th Cir. 2002). Where subject matter jurisdiction is absent, a court has no discretion and must dismiss the case. Chapman, 631 F.3d at 954.

A central component to subject matter jurisdiction is the question of standing, which requires that the party experience actual or imminent harm. Lujan, 504 U.S. at 561 (citing Whitmore v. Ark., 495 U.S. 149, 155 (1990)). A party's standing to bring a case is not subject to waiver, and can be used to dismiss the instant action at any time. Fed. R. Civ. P. 12(h)(3); U.S. v. Hays, 515 U.S. 737, 742 (1995); Chapman, 631 F.3d at 954.

2.1.1 Sassone Lacks Standing

Only the “legal or beneficial owner of an exclusive right under a copyright” has standing to sue for infringement of that right. See 17 U.S.C. § 501(b). Righthaven LLC v. Hoehn, 716 F.3d 1166, 1170 (9th Cir. 2013) (upholding a 12(b)(1) dismissal when Righthaven held none of the beneficial rights to the Las Vegas Review Journal's intellectual property). Section 106 of the Copyright Act lists the “exclusive rights” that are necessary to maintain standing to sue. They include the right to reproduce the copyrighted work, to prepare derivative works based on the work, and to distribute copies of the work. Id. If Sassone fails to allege the legal or beneficial ownership of one of these rights, he lacks standing to sue. Id.

Sassone did lay out some creative, but insufficient, allegations. He alleged that the relevant works in this case are “copyrightable.” (ECF No. 1-1 at ¶ 12). He has further alleged that he is “the sole owner of all right, title, and interest in and to the copyright in his works.” (ECF No. 1-1 at ¶ 16). He then alleges that he has never assigned nor licensed his rights in the copyrightable works. (ECF No. 1-1 at ¶ 17). However, four paragraphs before that, he claims that the works were all the subject of a monograph book. (ECF No. 1-1 at ¶ 13).

If one reads quickly, one might be fooled by Sassone's sleight of hand – especially at ¶ 16, and further if one fails to check the copyright office's register. With respect to what Sassone actually pleads, he fails to plead that he has the exclusive right to publish, license, reproduce, distribute, or make derivative works. As in Righthaven, Sassone alleges certain rights, but not enough to establish standing. A review of the copyright office's registration records shows that he has no registration for these works. See U.S. Copyright Office search results for "Sassone Marco", attached hereto as Exhibit 1.<sup>1</sup> Accordingly, even if he did allege such exclusive rights, Section 411(a)'s registration requirement is a pre-condition to filing a claim and he would lack standing to sue without either a registration or even an application for registration. Reed Elsevier, Inc. v. Muchnick, 559 U.S. 154 (2010) (rejecting notion that a registration is a subject matter jurisdiction prerequisite); see also Cosmetic Ideas, Inc. v. IAC/InteractiveCorp, 606 F.3d 612, 613 (9th Cir. 2010).

This is not mere intellectual property pedantry. As we all learned in first year property, property is a bundle of rights as defined by the state. These bundles of rights are not difficult to wrap the mind around when they deal with physical property. When it comes to intellectual property rights, it is less simple. The original "author" of a work is not always the "copyright holder" because a copyright is intangible property that can be bought, sold, divided, and ultimately the "creator" of the work may not be the author. Julie Cohen et al., Copyright in a Global Information Economy at 110 (2nd ed. Aspen 2006). Copyright in a work, "vests initially in the author or authors of the work." Id. However, the creator may not be the author if the creator sold the interest or created the piece as a "work made for hire." Cnty. for Creative Non-Violence v. Reid, 490 U.S. 730, 732, 109 S. Ct. 2166, 2168 (1989). For Sassone to sue to protect "his paintings" from being copied, he must allege that he has an exclusive right as a copyright holder. Silvers v. Sony Pictures Entm't, Inc., 402 F.3d 881, 885 (9th Cir. 2005). He has not done so.

<sup>1</sup> When considering a motion to dismiss, the Court may look to the public domain and the public record. Lee v. City of L.A., 250 F.3d 668, 676 (9th Cir. 2001). The Court may look to the public record to see that Plaintiff Sassone does not own a copyright in any of these works and take judicial notice of this fact. Id. This Exhibit is only attached for the Court's convenience and is not intended to transform the Motion to Dismiss into a Motion for Summary Judgment, as it is a copy of a public record and not extrinsic evidence.

1 Sassone has, however, claimed ownership of other works by filing for 2 registration. See Exhibit 1. So why hasn't he registered any of the works at issue
3 in this case? (Compare id. with ECF No. 1-1 at Exhibit A). Perhaps the works
4 were works-for-hire, in which case they would belong to his employer. Cmtty. for 5 Creative Non-Violence v. Reid, 490 U.S. 730, 732 (1989). Alternatively, the rights
6 may have been sold to someone else.

7 This would not stop Sassone from feeling an emotional attachment to the 8 works, but that would not make them his. For example, Paul McCartney may 9 feel a very emotional attachment to "Hey Jude," but at least as of today, he 10 does not own the rights to that song. See Dan Rys, "A Brief History of the 11 Ownership of the Beatles Catalog," BILLBOARD (Jan. 20, 2017).<sup>2</sup> Despite the fact 12 that McCartney is a well-known animal rights activist, the current owner of the 13 copyright has every right to license the use of the song to purveyors of bacon-14 wrapped veal and foie gras. McCartney, lacking ownership rights in the 15 intellectual property would be in the same position as Mr. Sassone – lacking any 16 standing to object.

17 It certainly pains artists to see their creations used for offensive purposes.
18 Iggy Pop must have died inside when he heard "Lust for Life" used in a vacuous
19 ad for Carnival Cruises. No song by The Smiths could be as sad as Johnny Marr 20 must have been, each time he heard his signature guitar riff in "How Soon is 21 Now" being used to hawk the Nissan Maxima. Similarly, Sassone is clearly a 22 talented artist. Seeing his works sold as lithographs like so many copies of Dogs
23 Playing Poker must cause him deep artistic distress, but it does not grant him 24 exclusive rights that have either been lost, sold, or otherwise transferred.

27 2017).

The copyright register shows none belonging to him. Exhibit 1. His claims must be dismissed for lack of standing.

2.2 Even if Sassone had a protectable interest, dismissal is proper under FRCP 8, 12(b)(6), or 12(c) because the stated Claims are Preempted by the Copyright Act

This Court should dismiss a suit under Fed. R. Civ. P. 12(b)(6) where the factual allegations fail to raise a right to relief above the speculative level. Bell Atl. Corp. v. Twombly, 550 U.S. 544, 555 (2007); Jones v. Bock, 127 S.Ct. 910, 920-21 (2007). The standard for deciding a 12(b)(6) motion and a 12(c) motion is “functionally identical.” Cafasso v. Gen. Dynamics C4 Sys., 637 F.3d 1047, 1054 n.4 (9th Cir. 2011), citing Dworkin v. Hustler Magazine Inc., 867 F.2d 1188, 1192 (9th Cir. 1989) (citations omitted).

Plaintiff alleges claims for RICO and deceptive trade practices but does not show a right to relief that is plausible and above mere speculation. First, the claims are pre-empted. Second, even if not pre-empted, the allegations elementally fail to state a claim upon which relief may be granted.

2.2.1 Preemption

Federal law preempts inconsistent state law. U.S. CONST. ART. VI, cl. 2. The Copyright Act expressly preempts state claims that assert rights and remedies that are exclusively governed by the Copyright Act. See 17 U.S.C. § 301. Federal courts have exclusive, “original jurisdiction of any civil action arising under any Act of Congress relating to patents, plant variety protection, copyrights and trademarks.” 28 U.S.C. § 1338(a). Works that fall within the Copyright Act’s subject matter are preempted. 17 U.S.C. § 301(a). Specifically, “all legal or equitable rights that are equivalent to any of the exclusive rights within the general scope of copyright ... are governed exclusively by this title ...

[N]o person is entitled to any such right or equivalent right in any such work under the common law or statutes of any State.” Id.

Section 106 of the Copyright Act grants the holder of a copyright the exclusive right to reproduce the copyrighted work. 17 U.S.C. § 106. Section 101 brings “two-dimensional and three-dimensional works of fine, graphic, and applied art, photographs, prints and art reproductions” under the purview of Title 17. 17 U.S.C. § 101. The Visual Artists Rights Act of 1990 (“VARA”) grants artists three basic rights: the right to attribution, the right of integrity, and in some cases, the right to prevent destruction. 17 U.S.C. § 106A. These sets of rights are what Sassone seeks to protect – nothing more and nothing less.

2.2.1.1 Preemption Test

The Ninth Circuit has a two-part test for Copyright preemption: (1) whether the subject matter of the state law claim falls within the subject matter of copyright as described in 17 U.S.C.S. §§ 102 and 103; (2) whether the rights asserted under state law are equivalent to the rights contained in 17 U.S.C. § 106, which lists the exclusive rights of copyright holders. Laws v. Sony Music Entm’t, Inc., 448 F.3d 1134, 1135 (9th Cir. 2006), see also Downing v. Abercrombie & Fitch, 265 F.3d 994, 1003 (9th Cir. 2001). Plaintiff’s claims fail to do so.

2.2.1.2 Preemption Test – Part 1

The first element looks to the subject matter of copyright: copyright protection subsists in original works of authorship fixed in any tangible medium which includes pictorial and graphic works of art. Laws 448 F.3d at 1139. Paintings are pictorial works of art. 17 U.S.C.S. § 102. “A work is fixed in a tangible medium of expression when its embodiment in a copy or phono record, by or under the authority of the author, is sufficiently permanent or stable to permit it to be perceived, reproduced, or otherwise communicated for a period of more than transitory duration.” Laws 448 F.3d at 1139.

Sassone's paintings are squarely within these definitions. Sassone himself has pled that his works are within the subject matter of copyright. See ECF No. 1-1 at ¶ 12. The subject matter clearly falls under the purview of copyright.

2.2.1.3 Preemption Test – Part 2

The second element of the Ninth Circuit test looks to whether the rights Plaintiff seeks to protect are enumerated in 17 U.S.C. § 106, which defines the exclusive rights of copyright holders. Laws 448 F.3d at 1143.

Three of the six exclusive rights apply here: (1) the right to reproduce the copyrighted work; (2) prepare derivative works based on the copyrighted work; and (3) distribute copies of the copyrighted work to the public. 17 U.S.C. § 106. In addition to the exclusive rights of a copyright owner, the author of the work (as opposed to assignees) have moral rights in the work. 17 U.S.C. § 106A.

"To survive preemption, the state cause of action must protect rights which are qualitatively different from the copyright rights." Laws 448 F.3d at 1143. "The state claim must have an extra element which changes the nature of the action." Id. (citations omitted). Ownership of material, and alleged misappropriation by defendants are, "part and parcel of the copyright claim." Id., citing to Del Madera Props. v. Rhodes & Gardner, 820 F.2d 973 (9th Cir. 1987) (internal citations omitted). The mere presence of an additional element is not enough, the additional element must transform the nature of the action to one not grounded in copyright. Laws v. Sony Music Entm't, Inc., 448 F.3d 1134, 1144 (9th Cir. 2006); see also Alcatel USA, Inc. v. DGI Technologies, Inc., 166 F. 3d 772,785-89 (5th Cir. 1999) (overturning a jury verdict in Plaintiff's favor on unfair competition by misappropriation claims due to federal copyright preemption).

The "extra element" does not exist here, because Sassone only alleges conduct and remedies addressed by Title 17: that Coker made and sold

1 unauthorized copies of Plaintiff's work. (ECF No. 1-1 at ¶¶ 19, 27). Plaintiff's
 2 complaint is about the use of copyrightable subject matter: Mr. Sassone is a
 3 painter and he claims that Defendants copied, reproduced, and distributed 4 copies of paintings.<sup>3</sup> (ECF No. 1-1 at ¶¶ 10, 19, 27).

5 Plaintiff's claims are equivalent to claims under federal copyright laws.
 6 Sassone invokes rights that can only be afforded to a copyright holder: the right
 7 to make copies of paintings. (See ECF No. 1-1 at ¶¶ 12, 16.) Ownership in the 8 intellectual property rights of paintings are protected by copyright and the 9 rights Sassone seeks to enforce through his RICO and deceptive trade practices
 10 claims are part and parcel of copyright. The alleged wrongs are copying,
 11 distribution, and making of derivative works. (See ECF No. 1-1 at ¶¶ 18-22.)

12 Sassone's claims of rights are the equivalent to the exclusive rights of 13 copyright holders, satisfying the second element of the Ninth Circuit test and 14 are thus preempted.

15 2.2.2 Preemption under The Visual Artists Rights Act § 301(f) of the 16 Copyright Act (VARA)

17 To the extent that Sassone's complained-of conduct is outside of these 18 traditional copyright claims, they land squarely on the turf of the Visual Artists 19 Rights Act ("VARA"). VARA protects the rights of attribution and integrity in an 20 artist's works. 17 U.S.C. § 106A.

21 VARA is a compromise law<sup>4</sup> that provides, "a limited and unique set of 22 moral rights protections." Julie Cohen et al., Copyright in a Global Information 23 Economy at 415 (2nd ed. Aspen 2006). VARA protects artists' rights in works of

24 <sup>3</sup> See 17 U.S.C. § 106

25 <sup>4</sup> Congress adopted VARA two years after the U.S. acceded to the Berne 26 Convention. JULIE COHEN et al., Copyright in a Global Information Economy at 27 415 (2nd ed. Aspen 2006). Moral rights, or droit moral are post-revolutionary French laws that aimed to protect the natural rights of artists as creators." Id. at 11.

visual art, defined as "a painting, drawing, print, or sculpture." Cheffins v. Stewart, No. 3:09-cv-00130-RAM, 2011 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 5947, at 9 (D. Nev. Jan. 20, 2011) (internal citation omitted). Sassone invokes rights for his paintings. (See ECF No. 12-2 at ¶¶ 12, 16). This "allows artists to protect their works against modifications and destructions that are prejudicial to their honors or reputations." Pavia v. 1120 Ave. of the Ams. Assocs., 901 F. Supp. 620, 628 (S.D.N.Y. 1995); see also Cort v. St. Paul Fire & Marine Ins. Cos., 311 F.3d 979 (9th Cir. 2002). This is truly the song Sassone's complaint sings to us.

VARA gives artists exclusive rights to claim ownership of visual art work and prevent the use of the artist's name as the author of any work of visual art which he or she did not create. 17 U.S.C. §§ 106A(1)(a), 106A(1)(b). A state claim is preempted by VARA if (1) it provides legal or equitable rights that are equivalent to any of the rights provided by 106A; and (2) the state law rights apply to works of visual art. See 17 U.S.C. § 301(f). Section 301(f) to the governs when state laws are preempted.

Here, Plaintiff seeks to enforce legal or equitable rights that are equivalent to those in § 106A, and thus preempted.

In this case, Plaintiff invokes VARA rights, as follows:

- Plaintiff alleges that he "has been harmed in . . . reputation" and that "[t]he harm to Sassone and his reputation is irreparable . . ." (ECF No. 1-1 at ¶ 44.) In this context, these are VARA preempted rights.
- Plaintiff alleges that Defendants "imposed a forged signature of Sassone on the fraudulent Lithograph productions." (ECF No. 1-1 at ¶ 21.)
- Plaintiff alleges that Defendant's "offered for auction the fake Lithograph productions and advertised them as 'Original Signed Lithograph by Artist Marco Sassone' or 'Lithograph After Marc Sassone.'" (Id. at ¶ 26.)

1 • Plaintiff alleges that Defendants “provided a fraudulent,
2 meaningless, self-produced certificate of authenticity with each sold
3 bonus Lithograph.” (Id. at ¶ 29.)

4 • Plaintiff alleges that “Defendants’ acts of copying, imitating,
5 fraudulently producing, forging, and selling the Works of Sassone have 6 and will continue to increase the presumed availability of Sassone’s
7 Works, thereby significantly diluting the market value of his Works.” (ECF
8 No. 1-1 at ¶ 40.)

9 Each of these allegations is equivalent to rights protected under VARA, and are 10 thus, expressly preempted.

11 2.3 Even absent pre-emption, the remaining claims are subject to 12 dismissal

13 2.3.1 Nevada Deceptive Trade Practices: Dismissal is Proper 14 Because Plaintiff has Not Alleged the Necessary Elements
and/or Has Not Specifically Alleged Fraud

15 Aside from preemption, the Plaintiff’s claims fail as a matter of law.
16 Nevada Deceptive Trade Practices are enumerated by statute in sixteen
17 subparts. NRS 568.0915. Many of Plaintiff’s allegations under the subheading
18 “Deceptive Trade Practices” in the Amendment Complaint (ECF No. 1-1) are 19 not causes of action under NRS 598.0915.

20 Plaintiff alleges that Defendants “knowingly forged Sassone’s name on to 21 the infringed fraudulent lithograph.” (ECF No. 1-1). “Forgery” does not give rise 22 to a cause of action under the Deceptive Trade Practices Act. Forgery refers to 23 a specific crime. NRS 205.085. Here, Plaintiff uses forgery as a general verb as 24 part of his Nevada Deceptive Trade Practices claim, yet forgery is not covered 25 under the statute.

26 ...

27 ...

1 Fraudulent is also a legal term of art and carries the additional element of 2 intent. NRS 42.001. In Nevada, one of the enumerated subparts of 3 NRS 568.0915 is, "fraudulently alters any contract, written estimate of repair, 4 written statement of charges or other document in connection with the sale or 5 lease of goods or services." NRS 598.0915(14). This is the only enumerated act
6 within NRS 598.0915 that has the element of fraud.

7 Fraud has a heightened pleading requirement. Under Fed. R. Civ. P. 9(b),
8 "a party must state with particularity the circumstances constituting fraud."
9 Cunningham-Dirks v. Nevada, No. 2:12-CV-00590-PMP-VCF, 2013 U.S. Dist. LEXIS
10 901, at 28 (D. Nev. Jan. 2, 2013) (citations omitted). To state a claim for fraud, a 11 plaintiff must allege, "(1) the defendants made a false representation, (2) the 12 defendant knew or believed the representation to be false, (3) the defendant
13 intended to induce plaintiff to rely on the misrepresentation, and (4) the plaintiff
14 suffered damages as a result of his or her reliance on the misrepresentation."
15 Id., citing to Barnettler v. Reno Air, Inc., 114 Nev. 441, 446, 956 P.2d 1382, 1386
16 (1998). Pleading fraud with particularity requires allegations regarding the 17 "time, place, and specific content of the false representations as well as the 18 identities of the parties to the misrepresentations." Id., citing to Swartz v. KPMG
19 LLP, 476 F.3d 756, 764 (9th Cir. 2007).

20 Again, Plaintiff uses the word "fraudulent" as an adjective rather than 21 within its specific legal meaning, leaving Defendants to speculate as to what 22 the possible allegations could be. Plaintiff has not alleged any of the elements 23 of fraud. Further, Plaintiff has not alleged to be a victim of fraud, as Plaintiff has 24 not alleged that Plaintiff relied on any of the alleged misrepresentations, as 25 required by element three of a claim for fraud, above. Further, Plaintiff has not 26 plead fraud with any level of specificity because Plaintiff merely alleges that 27 the lithographs are fraudulent, and does not allege any facts regarding the time and place of the activities, as required. Last, Plaintiff has not alleged that the Coker has altered a contract or a bill or sale or any of the other enumerated offenses covered under the statute. Neither has Plaintiff alleged that Coker had the requisite intent for fraud, yet Plaintiff uses the word fraud as an ordinary word plucked from a thesaurus without noting the legal significance of the word.

Plaintiff simply has not set forth the essential elements necessary to state a claim upon which relief can be granted, namely, that any legally cognizable "copyrighted" property has been infringed. Plaintiff's allegations are vague and must be dismissed for failure to state a claim.

2.3.2 Nevada RICO NRS 207.400(1)(c)(1) and/or (2) and 207.400(1)(j): Dismissal is Proper Because Plaintiff Has Not Specifically Alleged the Necessary Elements of RICO

Preliminarily, Nevada Federal Courts require that RICO claims, "be pleaded with sufficient specificity because of the very serious consequences attached to the allegations of criminal conduct that are the essence of this kind of law suit. Not only is a civil RICO defendant accused of committing a criminal offense – which carries with it the potential for considerable social stigma – such a defendant is also confronted with the possibility of an adverse treble damages." Hale v. Burkhardt, 104 Nev. 632, 638, 764 P.2d 866, 869 (1988). "Presumably (although not specifically charged) the 'predicate crimes' upon which the RICO cause of action is based are violations of NRS 205.380, obtaining money, property or labor under false pretenses. A false pretense is a representation of some fact or circumstance which is not true and is calculated to mislead; it may consist of any words or actions intended to deceive." Hale v. Burkhardt, 104 Nev. 632, 636-37, 764 P.2d 866, 869 (1988); citing to Buckner v. State, 95 Nev. 117, 590 P.2d 628 (1979).

1 Sassone alleges several RICO claims. First, Section 207.400(1)(j) is a catch
2 all that requires one, "to conspire to violate any of the provisions of this section."
3 In Nevada, conspiracy requires an agreement between two or more persons to 4 commit a crime. NRS 199.480.

5 Plaintiff alleges that Defendants conspired to create fake lithographs of 6 "Sassone's Works" and then sold and auctioned the works through websites
7 and auction houses they created. (ECF No. 1-1). However, there is no
8 conspiracy here, because nearly every factual allegation about Defendants is 9 directed at Mr. Coker. (ECF No. 12-2). Sassone voluntarily dismissed his claims
10 against Defendant Richard Morello ("Morello"). The only allegations 11 concerning Morello were that he created auction web sites, without any 12 allegations that could establish liability. The only accusations against 13 Defendants Darryl McCullough and And The Jello's Jigglin' LLC d/b/a Postal 14 Annex are that they allegedly placed objects in a mail box. Plaintiffs have not 15 properly pled that there is a conspiracy with the request specificity. As Plaintiff's 16 claims appear only to be directed at Coker, there is no conspiracy.

17 The elements of §207.400(1)(c)(1) and/or (2) in Nevada are: One who is 18 employed by or associated with any enterprise to conduct or participate in 19 (1) the affairs of the enterprise through racketeering activity; or (2) racketeering
20 activity through the affairs of the enterprise. Racketeering activity in Nevada
21 requires that (1) the Defendant engaged in at least two of the enumerated
22 crimes pursuant to NRS 207.360 and (2) that the Defendant had the requisite 23 intent to commit those crimes pursuant to NRS 207.390. The Ninth Circuit has 24 found that nominal parties are "unknown or fraudulently joined parties." Emrich
25 v. Touche Ross & Co., 846 F.2d 1190, 1193 n.1 (9th Cir. 1988) (emphasis added)
26 (citations omitted). The remaining nominal parties do not create a conspiracy.
27

1 In Plaintiff's amended complaint, Plaintiff alleges that Defendant
2 engaged in, "multiple transactions involving fraud or deceit in the course of an 3 enterprise or occupation in violation of NRS § 205.377." (ECF No. 12-2 at 10).
4 One of the enumerated crimes under NRS 207.360 is "any violation of 5 NRS 205.377." Pursuant to NRS 205.377, a person shall not engage in multiple 6 transactions involving fraud or deceit, which requires that the person act
7 "knowingly and with the intent to defraud." In Nevada, as noted above, fraud 8 must be plead with more specificity than an ordinary notice pleading under the 9 federal rules of civil procedure. Cunningham-Dirks v. Nevada, No. 2:12-CV-
10 00590-PMP-VCF, 2013 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 901, at 28 (D. Nev. Jan. 2, 2013).

11 However, again, Plaintiff's allegations do not meet the heightened
12 pleading standard required for either RICO or fraud, as analyzed above.
13 Plaintiff does not allege that Coker acted with the requisite intent to commit a 14 crime because Sassone has not alleged that Coker knew Sassone had an 15 ownership interest in any of these works. In fact, as analyzed above, the 16 opposite is true, because if Coker searched the public records, he would have 17 found no copyright. Exhibit 1. While a copyright registration might be sufficient 18 to show constructive knowledge of a copyright claim, the absence thereof 19 (and the lack of even the allegation of the affixation of a copyright notice) can 20 not give rise to the inference that Coker knew, or should have known, that the 21 works were either not public domain, or at the very least were Sassone's.

22 Plaintiff merely alleges that Defendants created fake lithographs of 23 "Sassone's works." (ECF No. 12-2). Yet Plaintiff does not allege that Defendants 24 acted with the intent to create anything that would subject Defendant to 25 liability because there are no registered copyrights. In fact, many businesses take advantage of the opportunity<sup>5</sup> to make money by printing works in the public domain.<sup>6</sup> In the absence of knowledge, there can be no RICO intent.
26
27

3.0 Conclusion

Based on the foregoing, Defendant Coker respectfully requests that this Court dismiss Plaintiff's claims for deceptive trade practices and RICO with prejudice. Plaintiff's claims are completely preempted and should be dismissed under Fed. R. Civ. P. 12(b)(6), Fed. R. Civ. P. 8, and Fed. R. Civ. P. 12(c) as a judgment on the pleadings.

<sup>6</sup> The public domain is a "foundational principle of the U.S. copyright system" and, at risk of oversimplification of a complex doctrine, it generally encompasses works that are not protected by copyright (usually through natural expiration of a copyright but sometimes by an artist's own volition to release their work into the public domain).
